SEYMOUR, INDIANA, TUESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1912.

PRICE TWO CENTS

LATE MESSAGE RECEIVED HERE

States John McCormick's Remains
Will Not Be Brought Back
For Burial.

TO BE BURIED IN CALIFORNIA.

Condition of Body After The Wreck
Is Cause of This Decision.

Another message was received here today from California stating that the body of John McCormick who was killed in a railroad wreck in that state will not be brought back here for burial as first expected. The word received was that the body was too badly mutilated in the wreck to allow of its being brought back.

No particulars of the accident were given but it was stated that a letter giving them has been sent.

This is the third death in the McCormick family within the past few months. Last fall John McCormick's father, Abe McCormick died at Brownstown and a few days afterward a sister of the elder Mr. McCormick was buried.

DIED.

CHRISTOPHER—The funeral services of Eldo Christopher were held at the Dudleytown church at 1:30 this afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Deimer. The deceased was the small son of Mr. and Mrs. William Christopher of Dudleytown and his death, which occurred Saturday, was from inflammation of the lungs caused by his having swallowed a tack last summer. As published in the Republican a few days ago, he coughed up the tack recently after months of suffering and for a time showed improvement. However the tack had caused an inflammation which resulted in the boy's death.

County Chairmen.

The chairmen elected by the Republicans in neighboring counties and throughout the district Monday were: Bartholomew, A. W. Phillips; Brown, Anderson Percefeld; Decatur, C. C. McCoy; Jefferson, Manly D. Wilson; Jennings, Young Bemish; Johnson, M. J. Voris; Ripley, Fred J. Morgan; Lawrence, Charles H. Allen; Scott, C. B. Matthews; Daviess, George Woodwin; Washington, John W. Colglazier.

District Convention Wednesday.

The Republican district convention for which delegates were elected Saturday will be held at Columbus at 1 p. m. Wednesday. It is expected that a large number of Republicans from this city and county will attend. John M. Lewis of this city will be elected district chairman at this convention.

Ed Jennings, who has been sick, is improving but is still unable to leave his home. Mr. Jennings is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor. He is popular and recognized as a fine campaigner and his illness is seriously interfering with his campaign. There is much sympathy for him on account of his unfortunate illness at this time. He hopes to be out soon.

FRANK WAS THERE

Presided at Republican Meeting and Made Speech.

At the meeting of Bartholomew county Republican committeemen at Columbus to select a chairman for the coming campaign, Frank S. Jones formerly of this city presided and made one of his enthusiastic speeches. The Republican says:

Mr. Jones made a speech in which he reviewed his early political training, saying Bartholomew county had been his political nursery. He cast his first vote in this county in 1888 when he voted for Harrison for President.

Mr. Jones spoke of the importance of a good organization and he urged the republicans to get out this campaign and vote the ticket instead of remaining at home as they did in the two previous campaigns.

The chairman said it was not the purpose of the committee to select the candidate, but to support those nominated and to see the republican policies and principles prevail.

Mr. Jones declared the elephant—the emblem of the republican party—had merely been asleep for two campaigns. "Arouse that elephant and get him stirring," declared the speaker, "and you will have the democrats trembling from Maine to California." With the admonition to get together and bury differences if any there be, Mr. Jones closed his speech.

MAY BE CANDIDATE

John H. Kamman Considering Making Race For Judge.

John H. Kamman, a leading attorney of this city, has been mentioned frequently as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for judge. He is considering the matter and may be in the race. He is well qualified for this responsible position and stands well with his party. He was twice the nominee of the party for congress in this district. The switching of Jackson county into a circuit with Lawrence, a Republican county, gives the Republicans an excellent chance to elect their judicial ticket this year and it is expected there will be ginger in the campaign. Several men have been spoken of in connection with the nomination, including one or two Lawrence county men, but it is understood that the leaders in that county are rather inclined to concede the nomination to Jackson if desired. This county has several Republicans well qualified for the bench.

Is a Candidate.

Mr. Montgomery is announced as a candidate for Commissioner of the First district subject to the Republican primary election.

Mr. Montgomery is now a resident of the city of Bedford, but has all his life been a practical farmer and yet conducts his farm near Williams. He is a man of the highest integrity and of most excellent business judgment. Mr. Montgomery will make a painstaking and efficient commissioner.

Mr. Montgomery all his life has been an ardent Republican and active for the party.—Bedford Mail.

Mr. Montgomery is a brother of Judge O. H. Montgomery and was born in this county.

The Republicans of Mitchell at Saturday's convention endorsed Mayor Shank of Indianapolis for governor.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

There are 21 cases of small-pox in Columbus.

Mrs. Minnie Kleumeyer of Dudleytown is seriously ill of heart trouble.

A few nights ago some thief stole eight fat hens from Henry Rinne's hen roost.

Mrs. John Fox of Reddington, who has been quite sick with rheumatism, is improving.

J. C. Haggerty and all the B. & O. officials here are holding a meeting today for employees.

Omer Owens has been called to Edinburg on account of the serious illness of his mother.

John M. Lewis is on the program for the district Pythian meeting which is to be held at Shoals February 7.

Councilman Misch's little son, who has been quite sick, is out again and was able to start to school today.

Mrs. George Reinhold of Brownstown was called here Monday on account of the illness of her sister Mrs. Alice Cox.

W. G. Irwin, president of the I. C. & S. with his sister will leave New York the latter part of the week for a trip abroad.

Ewing Shields will begin work on the new Jeffersonville Avenue improvement as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring.

W. W. Eagleston, manager of the Majestic, was called to Charlestown, Ill. last night by the serious illness of his wife, who has pneumonia fever.

Judge Montgomery, Judge Lewis and possibly other Republicans will tonight join the advance guard for the district convention at Columbus.

George Stahl south of the city, who was given a surprise Sunday in honor of his birthday, was twenty years old instead of twenty-one as stated Monday.

Abe Elrod has sold his interest in the Elrod restaurant to his brother, U. E. Elrod. The retiring partner has gone to Bloomington to accept a position.

Arthur, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Kaufman, was admitted to the Schneck hospital and underwent an operation this morning for throat trouble.

Attorney General Honan at the request of the governor has completed an abstract of the corrupt practices law and it will be widely-circulated in Indiana in pamphlet form.

A son was born Jan. 25 to Mr. and Mrs. William E. Marsh, of Minneapolis. Mr. Marsh formerly lived here and is a son of James N. Marsh.—Columbus Republican.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Emery left this morning for their home in Loveland, O. after visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Emery. Last Sunday while here they celebrated their thirty-second wedding anniversary.

An Indianapolis paper says: Eggs will retail at 5 cents each or 60 cents a dozen within ten days. Such is the assertion of local dealers and just to prove that they mean business they have advanced the wholesale price 3 cents, paying 37 cents for fresh stock. Even at that there are few eggs to be had.

Mrs. Kelsa Bortoff and Mrs. Jenkins were called to Louisville this morning by a message stating that their mother, Mrs. Dunn, who is in the Deaconess hospital there, is worse again.

Samuel Houghland has sold his 100 acre farm at Uniontown, the sale being made through E. C. Coleman of that place. The name of the purchaser has not been announced but he is said to be from outside the county.

Andrew Richardson of this city has traded a 125 acre farm in Johnson county, Ky. for four houses and lots in Brightwood, Indianapolis. They are said to be worth $4000. Richardson traded 60 acres near Freetown for the Kentucky farm several weeks ago.

Free flour and cereals for the first 12 months of married life will be presented to the first three girl students of the domestic science department of the Cheney State Normal school at Cheney, Wash., who become brides. This is the promise made to the 20 members of the class by Samuel Glasgow, president of the Centennial Mill Company of Spokane.

February 1 is the last day according to the county committee rules for Democratic candidates to pay up the assessments necessary to get their names on the primary ticket. According to the corrupt practices law the committee can't legally make an assessment of candidates, but must be content with voluntary contributions from them.

John D. Volz, state deputy in Indiana for the Modern Woodmen of America, returned to Indianapolis yesterday from the Woodmen convention last week in Chicago. Mr. Volz said he anticipates no objection on the part of Indiana members to the change made in the insurance department. It was voted for by two-thirds of the Indiana delegation, he said, and the Kansas delegation was alone in voting solidly against it. The insurance department one year hence will be based on actual mortality statistics compiled from the experiences of the Modern Woodmen of America. The rates when changed, Mr. Volz says, will be 15 per cent. lower than those of the National Fraternal Congress, heretofore considered the lowest in the insurance world.

Menlo E. Moore, who won notoriety a year ago in Washington, has written a book on vaudeville. He owns a number of theaters over the country. The following is from a Chicago paper:

"An influence has come to family theatre vaudeville which will be felt through its every vein. Menlo E. Moore, a young vaudeville Ziegfeld, is the force behind the new development."

"Within the last few months Moore has produced and played over the popular priced circuit of the western Vaudeville Managers' association, a series of spectacular musical comedy productions. Nothing like them for extravagant outlay, bizarre novelty and finesse of detail had ever been dreamed of in this field."

Clyde Steinbrenner of Indianapolis will organize a dancing class in the Society Hall Thursday, Feb. 1, 1912. Anyone wanting to join the class please be present at eight o'clock. Also children's class 4:30 to 6 p.m. No one except the class and patrons allowed in the hall during dancing school. Informal dance 9 to 12. 50 cents per couple.

ARGUMENT HEARD

Will Be Decision in Burrell Case This Week.

A message has been received from Guthrie, Oklahoma that the Burrell case was argued before Judge Cotteral of the Federal court Monday. The judge stated that he would render a decision some time this week. The men who are trying to bring the ex-banker back to Indiana are confident that the decision will be favorable to their cause. It is, it is probable that Capt. Applewhite will go after him although it is possible arrangements may be made with an Oklahoma officer to bring the prisoner back. Burrell is still in jail.

February's Experience.

There are other notable things about the month of February besides that it contains ground hog day, for it also brings to us Lincoln's birthday on the 12th, St. Valentine's day on the 14th, and Washington's birthday on the 22d. And yet when at its best, only once in four years, does February have as many as twenty-nine days. In other years she has but twenty-eight, being two or three days behind her no more deserving sisters. That February is thus bereaved of her children is primarily the fault of that very ancient Roman, Numa Pompilius, who arranged in his calendar that she should have only twenty-nine days excepting in leap years, when an additional day was not to be added at the end of the month, but was squeezed in—intercalated is the word—between the 23d and 24th, giving the month thirty days.

February was not long to enjoy this slight recognition of her worthiness. Along comes Augustus Caesar, the nephew of Uncle Julius Caesar. He named the month following July after himself, August, and that it might not lack in the dignity enjoyed by six other months of the year, he took from February one day, February that could least afford this larceny, thus reducing the month to twenty-eight days in all the ordinary years. Nor was this all, for it so happens that to keep the calendar straight it was found necessary to deprive the month of its twenty-ninth day for each century year except where the cardinal number can be divided by four, and so it has been robbed of its twenty-ninth day in 1800 and in 1900 and will be robbed again in 2100, 2200, etc.—Indianapolis News.

Shorter Time.

Heretofore physicians have been required to file reports of births with the commissioner within twenty days after such birth occurs. In the future the physician will be given only thirty-six hours and where no physician officiates at the birth of a child some member of the family must file such report. The failure to comply with this law will make the physician liable to a fine. For the first offense the fine is $10, the second offense is $50 and the third offense is $100.

Although these laws were enacted by the last legislature each health commissioner was informed that he would not be required to enforce the new laws until after the distribution of the copies of the acts.

REVIVAL MEETINGS

Begin This Evening at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. C. E. Watkins, the successful pastor of the Walnut Street Baptist Church, of Muncie, arrived this afternoon to open the series of revival meetings at the First Baptist Church this evening. Rev. Mr. Watkins has been very successful both as a pastor and as an evangelist in special meetings where he has assisted the pastors. He is a young man full of energy and enthusiasm and knows how to preach the gospel message to lost men. Come tonight and hear him. A large chorus choir will lead the music during the meetings.

Oblivion at Hand.

The oblivion at hand for the hobbler skirt, say Chicago merchants, will boom the sale of dress goods, double and treble the sales of recent months when scant skirts slashed them and brought about a dullness felt by the most enterprising manufacturers. For the tube skirt is to give way to a loose and flowing garment of Grecian cut. "This news," said the head of a big dry goods house, "should be well received by textile manufacturers and dealers throughout the country generally. At the present time it requires only about 40 per cent material to make the average gown as compared with the gown of a few years ago. This means that retailers must sell two and a half times the number of people to do the same volume of business. The present severe lines also have made a marked reduction in the sales of dress trimmings, linings, interlinings, insertions and such like, many of which are so dear to the female heart and lend to individuality not possible with tailor-made or straight-lined gowns." There is conspiracy to drive out the "hobbler," now seen as an angel incognito trying to reduce the costs of living at an unexpected point, as witness the frank words of another merchant: "Large buyers and manufacturers generally are doing everything they possibly can to further the new tendency so that dress goods and accessories will again come into their own, thus making it possible for women to more strongly emphasize their personal individualities in dress."

Fewer Daily Newspapers.

Newspaper census figures for 1911, compiled by the American Newspaper Annual and Directory, published here indicate that multiplication of daily papers in the United States has come to a halt. A year ago the number was 2,472; the 1912 Annual lists 13 less, showing that the trend is now in the downward direction. According to this authority, greater mortality than birth rate is explained by the suspension or consolidation of newspapers in crowded and unproductive fields. New England has lost four dailies, New York four, middle west states nine, and the western states have thirteen less than a year ago. Gains have been heaviest in the southern states, while the middle Atlantic section has an increase of three.

Weekly and semi-weekly newspapers also seem to have reached their limit in numbers. The 1912 Annual names and describes 16,229 weeklies, 49 less than in 1911 and 605 semi-weeklies, as compared with 617 in 1911.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

SOWING WILD OATS.

"Oh, he will settle down all right when he has sown his wild oats."

But will he?

And what will the harvest be?

There is a popular impression that youth—male, not female, youth—must have its fling; that the sowing is a necessary experience in the evolution of a man.

But if so—

Why not let the girl also sow wild oats? Why not let her gain her experience in scattering evil?

"Oh, that's different," you say.

How different? What has the boy to gain by the knowledge and practice of evil that a girl may not gain? If the boy may sow with reckless hand and then settle down to an exemplary life why not the girl also?

What about the whirlwind?

He—or she—who sows wild oats must reap wild oats—not wheat. "Whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap." And—

Not only must he reap the sort of grain he sows, but more than he sows. Evil propagates evil. A grain of wheat will "stool out" in the growing, producing many stalks for the reaping, which makes a tough harvest.

It is hard work, this harvesting of evil seed. The stalks are tough and tangled, and the sweat must pour from the faces of the harvesters.

Young man—

Many a man of middle age who has fought his way out of the snarled harvest field of sin would give his right hand if he could blot the scars and memories of that reaping. When he thinks of what the reaping might have been to others, if not himself, he shudders at the recollection of the risk.

You will come out all right?

It is sincerely to be hoped you may, but you will be a weaker man than you might have been. The odds are against you. The tangle of the weeds and tares the interwisted mat of the harvest—may hopelessly entangle you.

"Whatsoever," not something else; And you will reap not only that much, but more.

Whatsoever! That law of the moral world is just as real and stern as the law of gravity or the law of crystallization in physics.

Whatsoever.

Not less, but more!

WHY HESITATE?

An Offer That Involves No Money Risk if You Accept It.

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

MERELY A BLUFF
SAY THE MINERS

Their Opinion of Operators' Demand for Reduction.

MAY RENEW PRESENT SCALE

Apparent Deadlock in Indianapolis Conference, It Is Suggested, Is but an Effort on the Side of Both the Miners and Operators to Save Their Respective Faces, and Belief Is Expressed Scale Will Be Renewed.

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—The subject of the demands of the miners and the counter demands of the operators, the first for an increase of 10 cents on mining coal, and the latter for a reduction of the same amount from the present scale, was carefully gone over at a caucus of officers and members of the scale committee of the United Mine Workers and resulted in a determination to order a strike unless the increase should be granted. It was believed that the operators would be willing to renew the present scale, and the opinion was general that the demand for a reduction was merely a bluff, but the conference determined that nothing short of an increase would be necessary to enforce it.

After the conference some of the miners privately admitted that the organization is not in a condition financially to conduct a strike and that one would be hopeless unless the majority of the members of the organization can be continued at work so as to respond to assessments. The opinion was expressed, though, that the operators in some districts would grant the wage demanded and that this would enable the organization to carry on the strike where the terms are not complied with. It was said that in certain districts settlements had been approved in the past because of this fact, and that it would be the policy of the officers to make such settlements when present contracts expire, so as to keep some of the miners at work while others were on strike.

IT AROUSED HIM

When Petersburg Man Saw Wife With Another Man He Shot.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 29.—Jerry Hart, living at the Blackburn mines, three miles north of here, shot and seriously wounded William Auberry, a former boarder, and injured Marion Dill. Hart saw Auberry talking to his wife. He entered the house, obtained his shotgun and started after Auberry. The latter ran to the home of Marion Dill and was seeking protection when the shooting occurred. Hart shot Auberry in the back, dangerously injuring him. Sixty-five shot were removed by surgeons. Dill received several stray shots in the arm.

William Lee, Alleged Triple Murderer, Repudiates Confessions.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 29.—When put on the stand in his own behalf William Lee, accused of the murder of his father, mother and brother, repudiated all of the three confessions he has previously made. Fear of mob violence and promises from officials to transport him to places of safety caused him to agree to make the three confessions, Lee said.

Boy of 11 Shoots Infant Brother.

Noblesville, Ind., Jan. 29.—Orville Lambs, four years old, son of Willis Lamb, a farmer, was shot and instantly killed by his brother Virgil, eleven years old, while the children were playing with the family shotgun during the absence of their parents from home. Virgil did not know the weapon was loaded and playfully pointed it at his little brother, who was only a few feet away, and pulled the trigger. The top of Orville's head was shot off and he died instantly.

Court Will Annul Marriage.

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 29.—Prosecuting Attorney Andrews refuses to issue a warrant for the arrest of Florence Daly, the thrice-wedded girl of sixteen years, declaring that it would be impossible to convict the girl, owing to her age and record of three marriages, despite her confession that her last marriage was bigamous. Steps will be taken to place the girl bride in a Catholic institution, while the courts will annul her marriage.

An Industrial Exhibit.

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—Several hundred merchants of the state are preparing for the second annual convention of the Indiana Business Men's association, which will be held in Indianapolis, Feb. 13 to 17. An industrial exhibit will be staged at Tomlinson hall during the week.

FLAMES CLAIM FOUR AT FAMILY REUNION

Sad End of a Gay Week-End Party in Pennsylvania.

Butler, Pa., Jan. 29.—In a fire which destroyed the residence of Curtis C. Hale at Claytonia, ten miles north of here, early Sunday, four persons were incinerated and five were injured, one perhaps fatally.

The dead: Earl Miles, aged twenty-nine; Mrs. Earl Miles, aged twenty-eight; Mrs. Inez Dell Hale, aged twenty-eight; Scott Hale, aged eighteen, of Claytonia.

A family party was held Saturday night at the Hale home in honor of David, a son, who had come to spend Sunday. All lived under the parental roof except David and Mr. and Mrs. Miles. The fire started at 3 o'clock from an overheated stove. Miss Sadie aroused her parents. Making her way to the second floor, she rescued the year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hale, carrying it to her mother outside. Returning to the upper rooms, she found all unconscious. Grabbing her brother James, she dragged him downstairs. When she made a dash to rescue the others, a wall of flame closed her way. She staggered from the house and fell in the snow.

FIERY ITCHING SKIN.

Soothing Remedy That Clears Away The Eruption.

Try It at Our Risk

When your skin is on fire with an itching, burning eruption that is only made worse by scratching, it is high time to do something.

In our opinion the most certainly satisfactory treatment is our new skin remedy, Saxon Salve, for it is truly remarkable in all forms of eczema and other itching, crusted or scaly eruptions of the skin.

This remedy quickly stops all itching and penetrates the skin pores so that its healing, germ-destroying action reaches the very roots of the disease.

In all torturing and disfiguring skin diseases of children and grown persons Saxon Salve gives quick relief from pain and itching and soon clears away the eruption.

We sell Saxon Salve under a positive promise to give back your money if you are not perfectly satisfied. The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

"Myrtle Reed," said a Chicago member of the Illinois Women's Press association, "found few things that measured up to her high standard. She was especially down on the magazines. One day, I remember—" The woman journalist smiled. "I remember meeting her just after she had recovered from an illness. She told me she had worked all through her illness. She said that, on his first visit, the doctor had declared: 'Now, remember, no brain work!' 'But, doctor,' she had remonstrated, 'I have a contract with a magazine to turn out three magazine love stories this week. Must I break it?' 'Oh, no,' said the doctor, 'Oh, no; you needn't break it.'"—Los Angeles Times.

She Was From Missouri.

Professor Jordan, the corn expert of the Missouri College of Agriculture, tells a story illustrative of the suspicion with which people often view new ideas and inventions. In pioneer days a settler near the present town of Albany, Mo., bought for his wife the first cook stove ever seen in that part of the state. It was an object of great curiosity, and the woman's next door neighbor—who lived ten miles away—came to see how it would work. Without comment she saw the dinner cooked; she ate the meal with judgment held in reserve, and then remarked with a shake of her head: "Well, Sarah, it cooks all right, and the victuals taste good, but I don't believe it will ever be a success."—Youth's Companion.

Florida Senator Has a Bill For Publicity of the Pension Lists.

WANTS TO PUBLISH
THE PENSION LIST

Florida Senator Believes It Would Expose Frauds.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Publicity of the identity of the 900,000 pensioners on the government rolls is proposed in a bill introduced today by Senator Bryan of Florida. The bill directs the commissioner of pensions to publish in his next annual report the name, residence and length of military service of every pensioner on the rolls. Senator Bryan believes that compliance with the terms of the bill would expose many frauds and thus remove the names of thousands from the pension rolls. The bill will further provide that the proposed roster of pensioners shall be listed in state groups.

Millionaire Discovers Wife With Another Man, Who Is a Better Shot.

San Francisco, Jan. 29.—J. J. Moore, millionaire clubman, whose domestic troubles were before the divorce court here some weeks ago, was shot and probably fatally wounded at his country home in San Mateo county, by S. R. Timothy, chauffeur for H. C. Breeden, another San Mateo county millionaire. Moore has a bare fighting chance for his life. Before he received his wound Moore fired four shots at the chauffeur, all of which went wild.

Last night Moore was called to his home by a detective whom he had hired to watch his wife. He lay in wait in the shrubbery at the gate of his spacious grounds, and about 10:30 Timothy drove up in his employer's machine. Mrs. Moore was in the car with him. Moore jumped from his place of concealment and opened fire. Timothy fired one shot. The bullet struck Moore in the abdomen, passing through his liver. Moore sank to the ground, while Timothy surrendered to the police.

An examination of Timothy's room showed several handsome pictures of Mrs. Moore, likewise empty champagne glasses. Many articles of wearing apparel were found in his apartments bearing Moore's initials. The room had been recently occupied. Moore is about fifty-five, while Mrs. Moore is thirty-eight. Timothy is a good-looking fellow of thirty.

VALUABLE FIND

Junk Dealer Unearths $10,000 Painting Which Has Been Lost For Century.

Boston, Jan. 29.—A $10,000 painting which has been lost to the world for a century has been discovered in Boston. It was found covered with grime and dirt, in a North End cellar by a junk dealer. Not until it had been cleaned was its value learned. The painting is by Anthony Palamedes Staevers of the old Dutch school, who lived in the early part of the Seventeenth century, which makes this painting about 300 years old. Its genuineness has been passed upon by experts.

Boy Drowned While Skating.

Rochester, Ind., Jan. 29.—While playing on the thin ice of the Tippecanoe river near this city, Brode and Glendon Starner, aged eight and twelve, of Talmo, fell through the ice and were drawn under by the swift undercurrent. The younger brother was drowned, but Glendon succeeded in escaping.

SAID SHE WOULD FAINT

Mrs. Della Long Unable to Stand On Her Feet More Than a Few Minutes at a Time.

Pendergrass, Ga.—Mrs. Della Long, of this place, in a recent letter, says: "For five or six years, I suffered agonies with womanly troubles."

Often, I couldn't sit up more than a few minutes at a time, and if I stood on my feet long, I would faint.

I took Cardui, and it helped me immediately. Now, I can do my work all the time, and don't suffer like I did."

Take Cardui when you feel ill in any way—weak, tired, miserable, or under the weather. Cardui is a strength-building tonic medicine for women.

It has been found to relieve pain and distress caused by womanly troubles, and is an excellent medicine to have on hand at all times.

Cardui acts on the womanly constitution, building up womanly strength, toning up the nerves, and regulating the womanly organs.

Its half century of success is due to merit. It has done good to thousands. Will you try it? It may be just what you need. Ask your druggist about Cardui. He will recommend it.

CATARRH IN HEAD
ENDED FOREVER

Ely's Cream Balm Forever Ends Catarrh Miseries. Try a Bottle To-night.

The most effective and harmless way to cure catarrh or a cold in the head is to apply a little of Ely's Cream Balm. This pleasant, harmless, antiseptic, cleansing, healing Balm quickly heals the sore membranes and restores the sense of taste and smell. It will cure even the worst case of catarrh.

Get a 50 cent bottle from your druggist, use it according to directions, and cold in the head, catarrh, catarrhal deafness, headache, head noises and sneezing will all go. More than this, the Balm will strengthen the sensitive membranes, so that you can resist and throw off colds.

Quick relief from catarrhal misery awaits you at any drug store. A 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm is generally more than sufficient to cure even a chronic case of catarrh or hay fever. It is perfectly harmless.

Now He Knows.

They were strolling along the Charles river esplanade, a couple of old fellows, and both of them types. You could tell at a glance that one of them would ask the questions in life and that the other would feel called upon to enlighten him. While discussing the charms of the weather they came suddenly upon a set of the new life-saving apparatus that had been placed along the bank of the river.

"What's that for?" asked the old man, indicating the ladder and the long pole with its grappling hook.

"That's to get the moths out of the trees," replied his friend.

"Oh," said he, and was about to re-lapse into silence, when he discovered the life preserver. "And what do they do with that?" he asked, with a twinkle in his eye.

"That's to put around the trunk of the tree to keep the caterpillars from crawling up again," replied his friend, solemnly.—Boston Post.

The War Fifty Years Ago

President Lincoln's First Thanks to the Army---Burnside's North Carolina Expedition Storm Bound at Hatteras --- Southerners Desert the Coast Towns. War Prices In the Confederacy --- The Situation In Mexico---Napoleon III. of France Supposed to Favor the Southern Cause In the Civil War---Northern Opposition to Radical Anti-slavery Measures --- Difficulties of Arming the Troops---Sharpshooting Rifles Introduced In the North.

By Captain GEORGE L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.

THE last week in January was a quiet one for the armies in the field. Nevertheless the war moved on apace. On the 22d President Lincoln returned thanks to Thomas' army for its victory at Mill Springs on the 19th, the first formal congratulations to troops by the Federal commander in chief. This was the beginning of praises to troops and to leaders which was not only their due, but was beneficial in many ways. It announced to the folks at home that the government appreciated the sacrifices of their brothers and sons at the front. Napoleon Bonaparte set a good example in this respect by prompt recognition given sometimes on the field of battle.

On this day congress took up the famous war financial measure providing for $100,000,000 demand treasury ships were in evidence in the sound the Confederates on shore began to consider the expedition a failure.

As the rigors of winter increased throughout the north the people began to grow anxious as to the hardships suffered by the prisoners held in Richmond. Soldiers in camp about 100 miles from Richmond wrote home stories of snowstorms and freezing weather and suffering. Naturally the prisoners, who were wholly at the mercy of their enemies for creature comforts, must be worse off. It was in hope of relieving the captives that the United States secretary of war appointed a commission to visit war prisoners at Richmond and provide for the comfort of Federal soldiers held there. This was the first step in the amelioration of prison hardships.

The coastwise expeditions sent out by the Federal government naturally spread consternation all along the were drawn by horses, six to a cannon, and went into action with infantry troops. The large part of the field pieces then in use were smoothbore. One-third or less were rifled guns—that is, the barrel was provided with a groove to secure greater accuracy in the flight of the projectile. During the course of the war many of the smooth bore cannon were converted into rifled cannon by the simple expedient of boring a groove. Ayres' battery comprised two rifled guns and four of the smooth bore pattern. Captain Ayres was not content to be making artillery records, although his battery had scored well in his first action, Bull Run, where it was attached to General W. T. Sherman's brigade. It used canister on the Confederates at one crisis in the battle. Ayres went with McClellan's army to the peninsula as chief of artillery in General W. F. Smith's division. Later he became commander of a division of infantry, serving in that capacity until the surrender of Lee and coming out with the rank of brevet major general. It is also of interest to note that on Jan. 28 Colonel Hiram Berdan's famous regiment of sharpshooters, the First United States, was equipped with Colt's and Sharp's rifles. This was a pioneer sharpshooting corps in the eastern army. Others were organized earlier, perhaps, but experienced difficulty in securing rifles adapted to their use and also in assignment for this special service.

Napoleon III. and the South.

Other things than actual fighting past and to come, were being talked of at this date fifty years ago. There was the Mexican question, big with possibilities, for the south good and

RESISTED A ROBBER AND WAS SHOT DOWN

Cold-Blooded Murder of Aged Marion Man.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 29.—Just as he was in the act of retiring Clarkson W. Wilcutt, seventy-two years of age and one of the wealthiest citizens of this county, was murdered when called to the door by Cecil Fordyce, who intended to rob him. As Wilcutt opened the door Fordyce, who is but twenty-two years of age, pointed a pistol at him and demanded his money. Wilcutt grabbed the pistol and a struggle followed. Fordyce released himself from the old man's clutch and deliberately discharged the pistol. The bullet entered just below the heart and caused death a few minutes later.

Within an hour after the murder Fordyce was arrested from a description given by a neighbor, who saw him running away from the Wilcutt home after the shooting, and when taken to the police station he confessed the crime. Fordyce is a professional hold-up man, he admits. He had a partner who for thirty years has been in the same business. The partner escaped. Fordyce says he is a Wabash (Ind.) boy. He has relatives living there. He has been living at Houston, Miss., and came to Marion Friday from Wabash. He had held up men at six or seven cities, he said.

He said he used the gun and his partner went through the pockets of his victims. Mr. Wilcutt was the first man he ever knew to make resistance. He said Wilcutt seized the revolver he was holding on his victim and that it became necessary for him to shoot. He said it was the first time he ever shot a man and the first time he ever was arrested.

Kentucky Charges Harvester Company With Violating Sherman Law.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 29.—Simultaneous suits have been filed against the International Harvester company in Lincoln, Garrard, Boyle and Mercer counties, comprising one circuit of the judicial district, by State's Attorney G. D. Florence, asking $5,000 damages in each case and charging the company with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The suits charged that the company had crushed competition by combining a number of harvester concerns and selling machinery to farmers at an excessive rate. The suits followed a meeting of Prosecutor Florence with the county attorneys of the district at Danville.

They Miss Mr. Shuster.

Teheran, Jan. 29.—This city is threatened with famine as a result of the departure of Mr. Shuster, the former American treasurer. Mr. Shuster fought the corn ring and arranged for regular deliveries of grain from the provinces. Since he left the corn ring has been revived and there have been no grain deliveries. The price has already trebled and threatens to go still higher.

MRS. SCOTT'S SUFFERING OVER

Doctors Advised An Operation. How She Escaped Told By Herself.

Buckner, Mo.—“For more than a year I suffered agonies from female troubles and the doctors at last decided there was no help for me unless I went to the hospital for an operation. I was awfully against that operation, and as a last resort wrote to you for special advice and I told you just what I suffered with bearing down pains, backache, shooting pains in my left side, and at times I could not touch my foot to the floor without screaming. I was short of breath, had smothered spells, felt dull and draggy all the time. I could not do any work, and oh how I dreaded to have an operation.”

“I received a letter full of kind advice, which I followed, and if I had only written her a year ago I would have been saved so much suffering, for today I am a well woman. I am now keeping house again and do every bit of my own work. Every one in this part of the country knows it was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that has restored me to health, and everywhere I go I recommend it to suffering women.”—Mrs. LIZZIE SCOTT, Buckner, Mo.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1912

The history of the McNamara dynamite conspiracy would have not been completed had not the indictment against Clarence Darrow, the attorney who defended the McNamaras, been returned. After the case came to a sudden end it was learned that Darrow had known for months that the defendants were guilty and yet had allowed the collection of a gigantic defense fund, estimated at $250,000, to go on. The honest labor unions of the country sacrificed and contributed liberally to this fund, accepting as truth the loud protestations of dishonest leaders and Darrow that the defendants were innocent and the victims of a great conspiracy of capital against labor. The money went into the hands of Darrow for expenditure and there has been widespread discussion of just what became of it all. The public curiosity has never been satisfied. Just before the collapse of the case arrests were made for alleged attempts at jury bribing and it is believed that evidence was then obtained which resulted in the present indictment of Darrow for jury bribing. If money was being handled liberally in an attempt to corrupt jurors, it was natural to conclude that possibly the man who handled the great defense fund might have some information on the subject. If Darrow is guilty his punishment can not be too severe, if innocent he has an opportunity to clear himself. One thing is certain, the country will not be so ready this time to believe in a story of a gigantic conspiracy until it is proved.

George Peter, the new Republican county chairman, is a man who is well qualified for the position. He was the chairman of the old committee and has had years of connection with the organization work in this county. He has the ability, experience and time to push and handle the campaign as it must be pushed and handled this year to insure Jackson county doing a full share in reclaiming Indiana for the Republicans. The work of a chairman is doubled and made more difficult this year by reason of the passage of the registration and other new laws affecting elections and campaigns, now on the book. Republicans have confidence that the new chairman is a man who will satisfactorily handle the job.

According to a dispatch from New York today Col. Roosevelt has at last spoken on the absorbing question of whether he is a presidential candidate or not and has clearly defined his position. According to the declaration he is credited with making he is not an aspirant for the honor, would not have it if it comes through intrigue but will accept if there is an unmistakable demand from the party for him and it gives unmistakable evidence that it believes him the one man needed for leadership this year. He is also credited with disposing of the third term argument as applying only to consecutive terms. If the report which is published by the Indianapolis Star as authoritative, is really true it will probably give a considerable impetus to the Roosevelt boom. Republicans generally have believed that the ex-president is not a candidate but would accept if forced to the wall in the matter. But an open declaration will add some strength to the movement doubtless. However the statement today shows Roosevelt as not desiring the nomination, in fact, strongly averse to taking it, and makes no criticism of Taft. Of course all along the Roosevelt boomers have been trying by every means possible to prove that there is an overwhelming demand in the country for Roosevelt and that he is the one man to nominate, so that their job is not changed by today's dispatch. Republicans who favor Taft haven't yet been able to discern an overwhelming demand for Roosevelt to replace Taft and probably never will unless the convention should happen to do the unexpected and furnish the proof. As for their ever being but "the one man" to lead the party the Republican party is too rich in presidential material for that. But it is not necessary that any Republican should antagonize any candidate for the presidency to such a degree that he would be embarrassed in giving the successful nominee support after the convention.

Taft and Roosevelt are both great men and while differing in some things do not represent such widely differing views on leading questions that a good Republican could not support either. All have a right to their opinions and the Republican has believed and still believes that Taft is entitled to a renomination and will be given it.

Many Indictments Against Alleged Dynamiters Expected.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—The federal grand jury, which has been investigating dynamiting outrages for more than a month, according to the present understanding, will complete its labors and adjourn either Thursday afternoon or Friday. It is expected that thirty indictments at least will be returned by that body, and it is said to be the plan of the government officials to have the arrests all made at the same time if possible. The warrants will be sent out to the districts in which the indicted men reside and local arrests, it is said, will not be made until there has been time in other districts to serve the warrants. For more than two weeks stenographers and typewriters have been busy in the private offices of the district attorney preparing the indictments as they have been ordered by the grand jury, and while the names of none of the men will be given out until arrests are made, it is known that the jury has voted to indict some, and a number against whom the evidence is said to be very strong are yet to be voted on.

NOTED LAWYER FACES CHARGES

Clarence Darrow Indicted for Attempted Bribery.

GRAND JURY CITES TWO CASES

Each Indictment Contains Two Counts, and the Charge is Made That Chief Counsel For McNamaras Was Interested in Alleged Attempted Bribery of a Juror and a Prospective Juror in Trial of J. B. McNamara.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—The county grand jury has just returned two indictments against Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for J. B. McNamara and J. B. McNamara, self-confessed dynamiters. The indictments charge Darrow with complicity in the attempted bribery of R. F. Bay, a juror on the J. B. McNamara case, and G. N. Lockwood, a prospective juror in the same case. Each indictment contains two counts. A conviction on one of the counts is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than one or more than ten years. A conviction on the other count is punishable by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than five years.

Darrow on being informed he had been indicted, said: "I wish to reiterate the statement which I have made several times recently, that is that I know nothing of any bribery or attempt to bribe jurors or anyone else in connection with the McNamara case."

"I have retained Earl Rogers and Judge C. W. McNutt as my counsel and will fight the case to a finish. That is all I have to say at this time."

Darrow will be arraigned Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. He was required to give $10,000 bond on each indictment.

BLOW TO DEFENSE

Alienist Testifies That William Lee Is Legally Sane.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 30.—Dr. C. E. Laughlin, superintendent of the Southern hospital for the insane, dealt a blow to the insanity defense of William Lee, charged with murdering his father, mother and brother, when, answering a 4,000-word hypothetical question, he declared in his opinion Lee was sane.

Attorney Lindsey obtained from Dr. Laughlin an admission that under the hypothesis stated to him a young man might be legally sane and still medically insane, but that admission hardly changed the aspect of the doctor's first answer, since any person legally sane, he said, is accountable at law for his acts.

Lee's retreat from all incriminating questions on the grilling cross-examination to which Prosecutor Davis subjected him was: "I don't know," or "I don't remember." He remembered clearly most of the conversation that Sheriff Scales and Prosecutor Davis had with him on the day they brought him back from Jeffersonville, but he could not recall that he admitted to them again that he murdered his parents and brother. The defense resumed its direct examination this morning, and it is expected that the case will go to the jury late Wednesday.

Will Sell "Ben Hur" Line.

Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—Judge Anderson of the federal court handed down a decree providing for the termination of the Indianapolis, Crawfordsville & Western Traction company receivership suit and ordering the sale of the property. Under the terms of the decree, the property is to be sold on a date selected by Edward Daniels, master in chancery, and must bring at least $1,000,000.

Blind Youth Killed by Streetcar.
Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—Omer Ream, a student at the Indiana school for the blind, who was struck by a streetcar at Pennsylvania and North streets, suffering a fractured skull, a fractured left arm and internal injuries, died after being unconscious for thirty-six hours. The body will be shipped to Kokomo for burial.

Republican County Organizations.
Indianapolis, Jan. 30.—Republican county organizing conventions were held throughout the state Monday, the precinct committee meeting to select chairmen and other officials for the ensuing two years. In only a few cases were there any contests reported, and these were conducted along friendly lines.

Sheet Mill Workers Strike.
Hammond, Ind., Jan. 30.—Five hundred mill men are out on strike at the Inland steel mill at Indiana Harbor, thus bringing the sheet mill to a standstill. The workmen say their wages have been cut, while the management asserts there is a misunderstanding. A settlement is looked for in a few days.

CURRENT VERSE.

I Have Not Lived in Vain.
If I have tried to lift the weight
From some overburdened heart—
Bowed down with care and sorrow—
And helped to bear a part;
If I have checked the scalding tears,
And soothed and eased the pain,
And brought the smile of gladness back
I have not lived in vain.

If to an aged one I've been
A comfort and a stay;
And borne all childish weaknesses
With patience day by day;
If I have ever tried to cheer
To some green spot again,
And brought a ray of sunshine there—
I have not lived in vain.

If I have shown an erring one
Some better place to fill,
Though banished from society—
My sister woman still—
If I have ever tried to help
Her wipe away the stain,
And caused a thought of good within—
I have not lived in vain.

If, when the children hear my voice,
With swiftly flying feet
They run, with smiling faces
My coming steps to greet,
If to all of God's dumb creatures
I have tried to be humane,
And wrought some deeds of kindness,
then
I have not lived in vain.
—Tacoma Ledger.

The Genealogy of Rings.

They've studied up the family tree of Ebenezer Rings
And proved that his descent is straight from dukes and earls and kings.
He has a brand new coat of arms so handsome and so gay,
A mixture of menagerie and patterns in crochet.
They only mention relatives who fought with courage fine
Or rose to great distinction in the intellectual line.
But if they'd searched enough I'll bet the fact they'd run across
That somewhere in that family tree somebody stole a horse.

Them family trees don't allus tell as much as they keep hid.
It wouldn't be a thing 'gainst Ebenezer if they did.
He's generous an' he's kind and allus pays his honest debts,
He doesn't drink, nor chew, nor smoke, not even cigarettes.
But then it takes all kinds o' folks to make a world, you see.
There's a mighty wide assortment in 'most every family tree.
Let's just admire the gilding an' the trimmings an' the floss
An' be content to overlook the chap that stole a horse.

IRON SCHEDULE TO BE REVISED

That is, If Senate Follows House Lead.

BILL PASSES AMID CONFUSION

Republicans, Resenting Vigorous Use of Steam Roller by Democratic Majority, Delay For Several Hours the Vote on the Bill to Revise Iron and Steel Schedule of Tariff Law, but It Finally Passes by Vote of 210 to 109.

Washington, Jan. 30.—By a vote of 210 to 109 the Democratic bill revising the iron and steel bill of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law was passed by the house. The Republican minority became indignant at the refusal of Majority Leader Underwood to permit discussion of the free list paragraph in the measure, and by numerous amendments and ceaseless calls for "division and tellers," succeeded in delaying action for several hours.

On final passage twenty-one Republicans and Representative Berger of Wisconsin, the lone Socialist, voted with the Democrats for the measure. The Republicans were Jackson, Murdock and Young of Kansas; Aiken of New York; Davis and Lindberg of Minnesota; Haugen, Woods and Hubbard of Iowa; Warburton and La Follette of Washington; Lenroot, Moore and Nelson of Wisconsin; Norris, Sloan and Kinkade of Nebraska; Kent and Stephens of California; LaFerty of Oregon, and Helgeson of North Dakota. Three Democrats, Martin, Rucker and Taylor of Colorado voted with the Republicans against the steel bill. In the Democratic caucus held a week ago to indorse the measure these members explained that they were pledged to their constituents to vote for higher duties on lead and zinc than were provided by the bill, and by a caucus rule covering the case were excused from being bound by the caucus action.

The scenes in the house just before voting by the roll call, were disorderly in the extreme. Minority Leader Mann had repeatedly protested against the course of Majority Leader Underwood in moving to cut off debate on each paragraph and amendment before all the Republicans members who had expressed a desire to speak had a chance to do so, and when Mr. Underwood, unable to induce Mr. Mann to agree to limit debate to what he considered a reasonable time, finally started the steam roller working and moved that the bill be put on its final passage, there were jeers and catcalls from the Republican side, which were answered with interest by yells and cheers from the Democrats. The bill now goes to the senate. The Democrats expect to have the support of the insurgent Republicans in that body and to put the bill up to President Taft in practically its present form.

ECONOMY PROGRAM

Washington, Jan. 30.—In a caucus last night the Democrats of the house declared for economy after a bitter row. They not only instructed the public buildings and grounds committee not to report the $16,000,000 public building bill which the committee favors unanimously, but also they instructed the naval committee not to provide for any increase of the navy at this session.

Altogether the Democrats of the house wiped out proposed expenditures involving $36,000,000. The attack on the battleship program was unexpected and came more in the nature of retaliation than in a spirit of economy.

The public buildings committee and those interested in this pork barrel measure led the attack on the naval committee. When it became apparent that the public building bill was doomed in the caucus, they started out after the battleship program. Democrats now say that in order to be consistent they must prohibit a river and harbor bill, which it has been estimated will carry about $30,000,000 this year.

Marjory's Little Effort

"Do you honestly and truly think it's good, girls? Are you positive you are not flattering me?" asked Marjory of her literary society, known as "The Eight."

"It's splendid," answered Nan, delightedly.

"Just dear," added Ted.

"It's too cute for anything," said Evaristus.

"I consider it a strong story, even if I say so myself," said Mrs. Morse, Mildred's sister, while the other four girls added evidence of their appreciation of Marjory's literary ability.

"I've read it and reread it so many times myself that I can't judge, but I am glad you girls like it. Mother said: 'By all means send it to the paper, my child,' but mother has known me so many years that she is inclined to be partial to anything I do, from Irish crochet lace to writing stories."

"Brother Bob says that he has read many poor stories in his day, but 'this is the worst.' He advises me to save the money I spend in paper, envelopes, stamps and typewriting and send it to some poor, worthy family. He says Uncle Sam's mail department should not be compelled to carry such literature. But Bob is no critic. He was cross, anyway, when I read it to him, because the laundry failed to return his pet white vest in time for Violet's dinner dance. I don't care what he says, if you girls really like it."

"I love it," said Ted. "If you don't send that story to a magazine, Marjory Morton, I'll never speak to you again. Any editor with good judgment will eagerly grasp it."

"Well, you girls know what you know. If you insist, it goes. All hold your breath, and, if it is accepted, I'll treat you girls to a fine luncheon."

Ten days later Marjory burst into Mildred's house with: "Mildred! Mildred Morton Morse! Come! Oh, the grandest thing! Gorgeous!"

"What is the matter? Are you engaged? Who is the man? Tell me quickly, and stop screaming."

"My story has been accepted. I just received a check for ten dollars. I'm an authoress. Behold me, your sister, Marjory Morton! My name in print! Wonderful! I could just hug that beautiful editor! I'll phone the girls and tell the news."

"Don't forget the promised luncheon," said Mrs. Morse.

"That's so," answered Marjory. "Why did I make such a rash promise? Ah, pity 'tis 'tis true."

"We've made arrangements for me to give my luncheon—to meet at 12 o'clock next Saturday," said Marjory a short while later. "So be on deck with your white beaver hat, black velvet suit and violets. The girls were just wild with delight. Nan said she was going to fast until then."

"I think I will do likewise," said Mrs. Morse with a laugh.

"Oh, dear, now I'm a literary woman, I suppose I'll have to muss my hair, and let my skirts sag in the back. No more tube skirts and fancy bags for me!"

"Marjory, your success has surely gone to your head. Be calm and placid," said her sister.

Saturday came, as Saturdays will, but this particular Saturday "The rain was raining all around." It poured and poured.

"Since the time of Noah there has never been such a deluge," wailed Marjory.

"Can't you postpone your luncheon until the sun rises?" questioned Mildred.

"Decidedly not. It's all ordered. Can't possibly countermand it at this late hour. What shall I do? No one but a duck could go on foot in this storm," questioned the hostess.

"I'm afraid, sis, it will have to be taxis," weakly suggested Mildred.

"Eight girls mean two taxis. It's dreadful! But I suppose I'll have to submit to the inevitable," said Marjory, as she left the room to call up the garage.

"As Marjory bade goodbye to her friends after the affair was over, Edith said:

"It was a perfectly lovely luncheon, dear."

"Never had a better time," added Dorothy.

"You were a dear to invite us," exclaimed Violet.

"Hope you write some more stories," said Eva.

While all the rest were adding praise thanks, Marjory was mentally figuring accounts. She discovered that the luncheon bill, taxi fares, tips to chauffeur, maids, and small corsage bouquets, amounted to exactly $19.25, while at home rested a paltry ten dollar check.

"Serves me right," she said to Mildred that night. "I'm always so impulsive with issuing my invitations."

"But we did have a jolly lark. Guess I'll run upstairs and write another story. No matinee for me this week!"

She Was All Right, But—

They met for the first time since their meeting in Europe the previous summer.

"And did you have a pleasant voyage home?" asked the hostess.

"We did—very," was the answer.

"You were not ill, I hope?" asked the hostess, turning to the wife.

"No-o," said the young wife, "I was not, but I couldn't have yawned alone."

SCOUTING IN WEST VIRGINIA

Incidents of Battle of Beverly, Near Where General Garnett Was Killed, Are Recounted.

The story of a scout who passed among his unsuspecting enemies and returned later to capture some of them is told by Lysander Johnston, who was a soldier in Gen. George B. McClellan's army in western Virginia early in the war. The adventure of which he tells was an incident of the operations that include the battles of Beverly, Laurel hill, Rich mountain and Carrick's ford, fought from July 11 to 13, 1861. In the last named battle Gen. R. S. Garnett, the confederate commander, was killed where he was holding a second ford with a small bodyguard.

Mr. Johnston's story is as follows: "I was acting as a scout in Gen. Thomas A. Morris' division and the day of Gen. Garnett's death I was sent with a message to Gen. George B. McClellan at Beverly, Va. I was selected by Gen. Morris to Grafton to go out into the country and procure horses enough to mount thirty or forty men, whom I was to take out on scout duty between the enemies' camp at Laurel hill and Philippi."

"Gens. McClellan and Morris were to begin the attacks on Pegram and Cutting Trees Across the Road.

Garnett at about the same time. So Morris moved from Philippi July 9 and took position inside Garnett's outer line of works. The 10th and 11th he bombarded Garnett and drove him into his stronger works. Early in the morning of the 12th we found that Garnett had abandoned his the mountain. Gen. Morris prepared a message as soon as he could to send to Gen. McClellan for orders. He asked me to deliver it to Gen. McClellan as soon as possible.

"I started for Beverly shortly after daylight in a drizzling rain, but protected by a rubber blanket with a hole in the center, through which I stuck my head. This outfit proved to be my protector from identification soon after. On reaching the road running up and down the valley, much to my surprise, I learned that a large body of troops had just passed the junction coming down the valley from Beverly. I halted a few seconds to take in the situation and then went ahead."

"I had not gone more than a mile or two when, rounding a curve in the road through the woods, I came face to face with Garnett's rear guard of about 200 or 300 men. The psychological moment had arrived. I did not dare stop to think and so kept up my gait until I came to the head of their column. Then I checked my speed a trifle and gave the military salute and they opened fire. I passed through their ranks and was then able to take in the situation. I was not out of danger, however, for they had left ten or twelve men a short distance back, scattered along cutting trees across the road to keep Gen. McClellan from pursuit with his artillery. I passed through and around the fallen trees with the air of an inspector of their work without being asked a question. As I went among the men the whole truth flashed through my mind: Gen. Garnett had not known that Gen. McClellan had cut off his retreat on that road until he arrived at or near Beverly and then he had had to counter-march down the valley."

"Under Gen. McClellan's orders Gen. Morris immediately pursued Gen. Garnett. If Gen. Garnett had not made the mistake of trying to retreat up the valley and through Beverly he would have had at least ten or twelve hours the start of Gen. Morris and would have escaped. As it was he was only four or five hours ahead and we overhauled and captured his supply train before it had gone more than twelve miles from the point where I had met Gen. Morris on my return from Beverly. About five or six miles farther on Gen. Garnett was killed on the Cheat river, near Carrick's ford, late in the afternoon."

Famous Portia of Paris

Mile. Miropowski, the famous woman lawyer of Paris who has gained special eminence by pleading in criminal courts, is shown in our illustration addressing one of the regular weekly meetings of the Paris bar. She also has lectured in London and has been entertained by the judges there. Mile. Miropowski believes women are of especial use at the bar in cases affecting children, and would like to see mixed juries, but does not think the time ripe for the appointment of women judges.

MILLION PIECES IN TABLE BEES MAKE GREEN HONEY

A table made up of 1,000,000 pieces of wood, inlaid on a foundation of white pine, required one year for S. P. Wood, of Joplin, Mo., to construct, and won a blue ribbon at the Interstate exposition. More than a score of native and foreign woods went into its makeup, the outside surface being a design colored by bits of varicolored woods, some of which were not more than a sixteenth of an inch long. It has been estimated that at least 1,000,000 pieces were required for the table. Several blocks in the top which caused speculation as to the kind of wood used were made of shavings of many blocks. Wood never took a lesson in inlaid work. He has been a carpenter all his life. Another small table containing a specimen box for ores of the district, is also an interesting curiosity. On the front is a picture of a canoe being propelled by a man. All colors are natural woods, the man's fingers being each a separate piece.

WINE FOR FOWLS

M. Joubert, professor at the agricultural college at Fontainebleau, claims that he has discovered a new and simple method of making hens lay. He feeds them with wine in addition to their ordinary food. The professor has not allowed his discovery to be made known lightly. He has been experimenting with fowls of all kinds for several years and finds the same result in every case. In each case he experimented for the four winter months with two sets of 12 fowls of the same breed, adding bread soaked in wine to the food of one of the two sets of 12. In every case after six separate trials the wine fed hens laid more eggs in the proportion of 20 eggs a month or there about.

SMALLEST COW IN WORLD

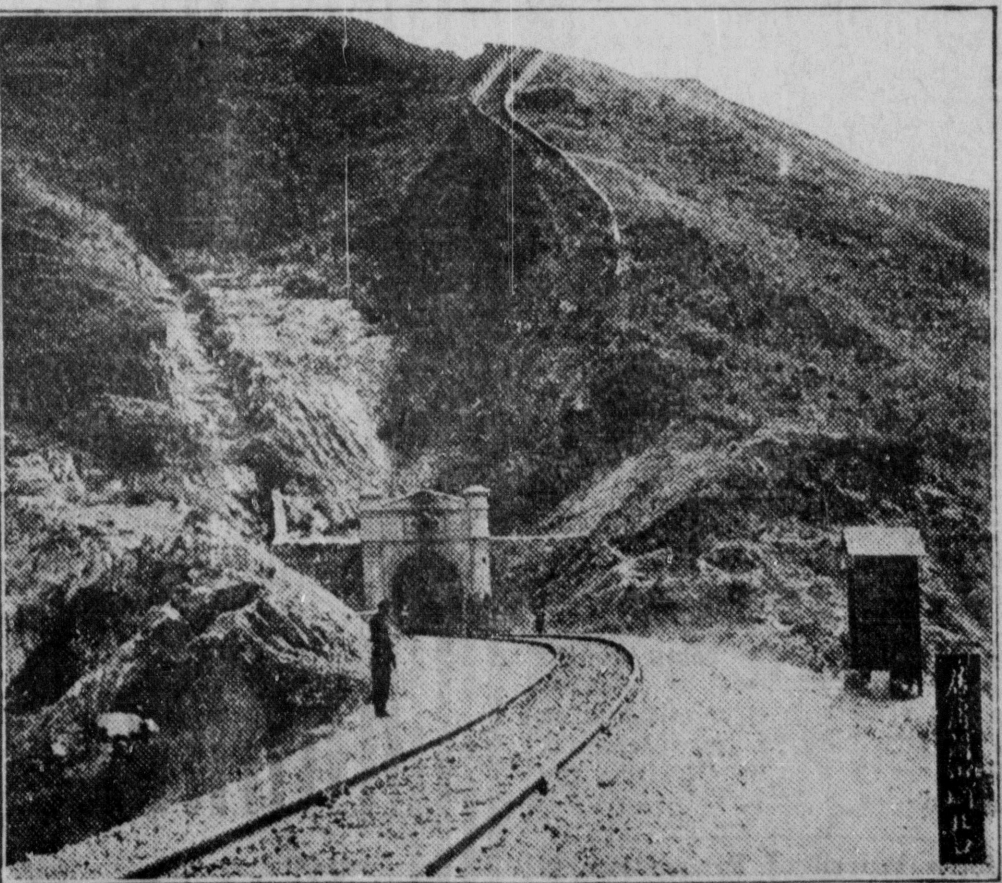

A restaurant keeper in Paris is the proud owner of the smallest cow in the world—so far as is recorded. The little animal is just over two feet in height and is five years old. She gives good milk, though naturally not in great quantity, and besides attracts many customers to her owner's cafe.

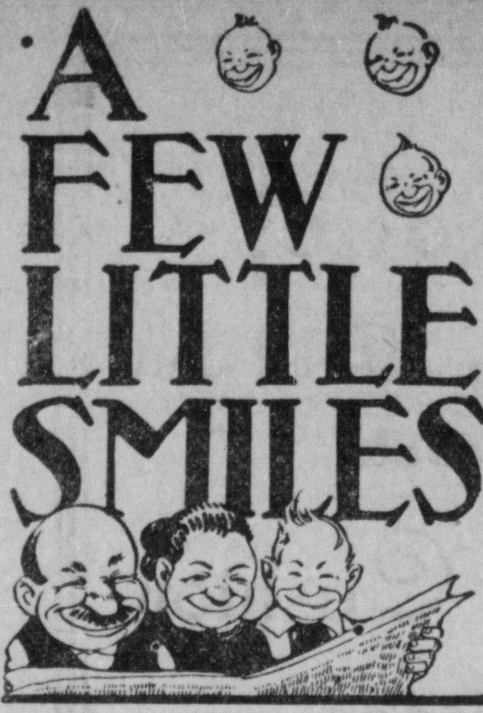

CAMERA PROTECTS VAULT

Besides the usual burglar alarms that protect bank vaults a snapshot camera has been introduced. Automatically it will take the burglar's picture as he looked while in the act. The flashlight photograph will both serve to identify the man and furnish evidence of his guilt.

Tunnel Under Chinese Wall

All things relating to China are interesting these days, and not the least interesting is the railroad from Peking to Kalgan, which was financed, engineered and built entirely by the Chinese. The line is 130 miles long and there are four concrete tunnels. One of these tunnels passes under the Great Wall, the entrance to it forming the subject of our illustration.

BET AND LOST.

A Kansas merchant who had just paid a fine because his vegetable display box was not six inches higher than the sidewalk, ventured the assertion that a man can't go from morning till night without breaking some Kansas law, no matter how careful he is. A hotel man thought he could, and a wager was made, and the next day was set for the test.

"I'll win that bet, all right," said the hotel man. "I'll stay in bed all day tomorrow."

And he did, until just before dark, when an inspector came along and arrested him for not having a nine-foot sheet on his bed.

Unfortunately Put.

Suffragette—A man in the audience told our speaker that she properly belonged to the woman's auxiliary of the Ananias club. It made her furious.

Friend—Naturally—to be called a liar. The idea!

Suffragette—The idea, indeed! As if there couldn't be a Saphira club.

Self-importance.

"What's the trouble with that prima donna?" asked the manager. "She used to be very pleasant and considerate."

"Yes," replied the stage manager, "but she has gotten so she believes all the press agent writes about her."

Change of Name.

Disillusioning Carson

With a little cry of pain, Alice sank to the snow covered pavement. Beneath the fresh fallen snow was an icy patch, and her ankle had turned under her.

She had been detained at the office, rather late and the street was deserted. Even the policeman on beat had sought shelter from the storm.

She made an effort to rise, but sank back helplessly as she placed a strain on the injured ankle and she began to cry softly. For perhaps ten minutes she lay there, then from around the corner came a muffled form and she gave a glad little cry that attracted attention.

"What's the matter?" called a cheery voice. "Had a slip?"

"I have sprained my ankle," she explained. "I can't get up and it began to look as though I should have to spend the night here."

"I guess not," was the cheerful response. "Live far from here?"

"Four blocks down and one over."

"Not worth while calling a cab," he commented, as he took a quick glance around. "I don't think we could get a cab if I telephoned for one. This seems to be the proper caper."

In a nearby basement some boy had left his sled, and the man caught it up. "This will do finely," he announced. "I'll have you down there in no time at all."

Gently he raised her in his strong arms and disposed her comfortably on the sled. Then he grasped the ropes and started off at a brisk trot.

"It reminds me of the times when I used to draw my sweetheart to school on my sled," he called over his shoulder. "Ever live in the country?"

"Long ago," she answered. "It seems ages."

"Then I guess this makes you young again, too,"

"That's polite," she replied with a laugh.

"I didn't mean that," he stammered.

"I meant it would make you a kid again. I didn't suppose that you were an old lady, though with that brown veil, you might be my own grandmother."

"Thank you again," she cried.

"I guess I won't say anything more," he chuckled. "Perhaps I wasn't built to pay compliments. Is this where your turn?"

"To the right."

"Right it is," and the sled swung around the corner. Presently, at her word, he drew up in front of a house and again he lifted her in his strong arms. The ankle hurt terribly, but there was something comforting in the sense of his strength.

It was only a moment before his ring was answered and as the door swung open and the yellow light streamed out, Mrs. Donaldson gave a cry of surprise.

"Why, Ned Carson, what are you doing here?"

"I've a bundle marked 'damaged in transit,'" he explained, smilingly, "but I did not know that it was for you. Is it Alice?"

"Certainly, the poor child. Take her in the parlor and I'll be right along with hot water and bandages."

Carson carried the girl into the parlor and deposited her carefully upon the sofa.

"I never thought," he said softly, "when I spoke of carrying my sweetheart to school, that it was my real one-time sweetheart that I was talking to."

Alice colored vividly. She remembered those old days, and how they had plighted their childish troth. Ned had gone away and they had lost sight of each other. What would he say when he heard of her engagement?

"I'll run away with that borrowed sled before the police get after me," he announced briskly. "Then I'll be back to see if I can be of any use."

"Alice heard the front door close and settled weakly back upon the pillow. It seemed cruel, just as he had found her again and just when circumstances recalled their childhood, that she should repay his kindness with disillusionment. She had been genuinely fond of Ned in the old days, and she hated to give him pain. Yet it was best that she should tell him frankly. It was a generous cruelty."

Presently he came stamping back to announce that he had caught the small boy just going for a policeman, and that he had compromised for a quarter.

His good humor was infectious, and Alice found herself forgetting her pain in listening to his recital of his experiences in getting ahead. He was so frankly proud of his success that it seemed a shame to dispel the newly-awakened romance by a word, yet she nerved herself to the task.

"I have a surprise for you," she began. "After all this talk of old times, doesn't it seem funny to hear that I'm engaged. I'm going to be married in the spring."

She shrank back against the pillows, awaiting the look of disappointment she feared. Ned's face lightened with kindly interest.

"Take my advice," he said, "and go to Washington for your honeymoon. They are so used to bridal couples there that no one notices them. That's where we went last year."

Then, blushing guiltily, they looked into each other's eyes and—laughed.

IMAGES of CHRIST

FROM SABBATH READING

VEAR after year some nameless monk labors on a rough block of some cathedral column till it turns into the very likeness of Christ. He dies, and they bury him in a forgotten grave; but every morning the light streaming through the eastern window over the head of Christ, as from the eyes of the Judge, touches with gold that image of the Lord wrought by his servant; and as the generations pace the aisle beneath, high above them, beautiful and unchanging, remains the unknown worker's memorial.—Ian MacLaren.

But, after all, it is only an image in stone, and while multitudes may admire it, only persons of an artistic temperament are likely to find any inspiration in it.

And in any case, it is only one man or woman in a million, or in ten million, who can make such an image, even at the cost of the labor of a lifetime.

But it is possible for every human being to produce an image of Christ which will be an inspiration to all who see it and which will make an impression on the world that will be permanent. For he who created man in his own image at first longs to restore in us that image, which we have lost through sin, and he has sent his Holy Spirit to dwell in our hearts and mold us into his image. If therefore we will but determinedly fix our eyes on Christ as our leader, and strive to follow him faithfully, this miracle of transfiguration will be wrought in us more and more fully as the years go by. And it will be by and by true of us that "we all with unveiled face reflecting (or rather, beholding and reflecting) as a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from the Lord the Spirit."—(2 Cor. 3:18.)

The Sacrifice Required.

The recipe for the attainment of this great honor is a very simple one, though not by any means easily followed. "I beseech you therefore, brethren," says the apostle, "by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your reasonable service (or, spiritual worship). And be not fashioned according to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God."

The whole secret lies in that expression "the renewing of your mind." As long as the customs and fashions and ideals of the world occupy our minds, and are accepted as worthy of pursuit, so long our minds will be fixed on the things of this life; but if with determined purpose we set before us as the goal of our ambition the accomplishment of the will of God in our lives, then gradually our whole character will adapt itself to this higher object of pursuit, and we shall become like Christ.

Compromise Impossible.

The great trouble with many of us is that we do not and cannot realize how irreconcilable is the antagonism between worldliness and Christliness, and we are all the time trying to patch up some sort of compromise between these two mortal enemies.

"Love not the world," John says, "neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the vainglory of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

Not only does the man himself abide for ever, but his influence abides for ever. It is a living thing, a spiritual force which cannot die and which reproduces itself in other hearts and lives perpetually, though the man with whom it originated may be altogether forgotten.

Listening Times.

What we need above all things in these crowded days is the setting apart of many listening times; times of quiet in which we can hear the heavenly voices that call to us unregarded in the busy day. . . . God has something to say to us which, in the whirl of our earthly ambitions, we cannot hear; and he makes the noises of the outer world to cease that he may speak to the soul. Sometimes he "tries us in the night," sometimes he "giveth songs in the night," sometimes he gives us "a vision in the night," but all of these we shall utterly miss if there is no quiet time in which he can come near to us. There are many ways of preparing to receive blessings from on high; but one of the most essential is this: "Commune with your own heart, and be still."—G. H. Knight.

BLIND TAILOR REGAINS SIGHT

Had Given Up Hope When Baltimore Doctor Undertook Operation, Which Was Success.

Baltimore.—The "Little Blind Tailor" of Spruce alley now sees the sun shine for the first time in more than fifteen years. Louis Haley was dismissed from Franklin Square hospital, where he had been under treatment for his eyes for several weeks. When he registered he was totally blind.

Haley told how it felt to be blind so long and suddenly to realize that he had regained the use of his eyes.

"The first thing I remember," he said, "was being in St. Andrews Orphan asylum, which is run by the Catholic sisters. I haven't got to be people, you know. After I got to be a good-sized kid they sent me over to St. Mary's Industrial asylum, where they taught me to be a tailor. When I was about 21 I was a graduate tailor, and they sent me out to get a job."

"Well, my eyes had always been pretty bad, but I felt that I could make a living all right, and so I went to work. My eyes were bothering me all the time and finally they got so bad that nobody would have me around the shop because they said I did bad work."

"When my savings were all gone, a lady got me a job at the door of the hospital. Finally it got so bad I could not tell light from dark and was about to quit when Dr. McConachie came along and told me he'd try the only chance there was to cure me."

"When I went on that operating table I believed that I would never be able to see again, so you can imagine what my feelings were when I got up and after a while found that my sight was as good as it had ever been before."

PARDONS AN HONEST NEGRO

Governor John Slaton Thinks Twenty Years Enough for Man Who Confessed Murder.

Atlanta.—Nearly 20 twenty years a convict is considered by Governor John M. Slaton as punishment enough for a negro, who, after committing a murder and fleeing from the state, paid his own railroad fare back from Mississippi to the scene of the crime and confessed, expecting to be hanged for his trouble. In the case, that of James Foster, sent up 20 years ago from Early county, the governor has granted a full pardon.

Twenty-four years ago Seaborn Sheffield, a wealthy planter, who lived alone, was found dead while at the supper table. There was no clew to the murder, and the crime remained a mystery until four years later. While court was in session, Foster came to the sheriff and stated to him that he was the murderer. The negro had fled to Mississippi and remained there four years. He said his conscience drove him to return and confess, and he said he expected to be hanged.

The negro claimed he had been forced to kill Sheffield by the latter's two sons-in-law, who feared he would divorce his wife. The negro was given a life sentence, but the white men he implicated were acquitted. The negro has been an exemplary prisoner, and Governor Slaton thinks he should be rewarded for confessing the crime when he was in no danger. The pardon of the negro was urged by Justice Powell, of the Court of Appeals, who is a nephew of the murdered man.

TO ENJOIN A WORSHIPER

Priest Gets Restraining Order Against One for Defiance—Menaces Peace of Congregation.

Pottsville, Pa. — Declaring that Stephen Pecuch, of Minersville, sits in the front pew at nearly every service in St. George's Greek Catholic church of that town and grins offensively and disrespectfully at the priest and worshippers, and that Pecuch "struts out of the church before the services are completed in an offensive, insolent, disrespectful, belligerent, irreverent and defiant manner, menacing the peace of the congregation," Rev. Andrew J. Kaminsky petitioned the Schuylkill county court today for an injunction to prevent Pecuch from entering the church or any part of it.

Sheriff Murphy served the injunction late this afternoon on Pecuch, and the community awaits the outcome. There has been opposition shown against the priest, even to an attempt to dynamite his residence, and several suits are now pending between him and some of the church people.

HER GOLDFISH ARE BOMBS

Woman in Letter to Commissioner Says Her Pets Are Given to Exploding Into Fragments.

Denver, Colo.—Finny McNamara are probably at work on the goldfish tribe in Colorado, according to an opinion of Col. James A. Shinn, state game and fish commissioner. Colonel Shinn bases his theory of such probability on a letter received from a Colorado woman.

"I just wonder what's the matter with my goldfish," the woman wrote to Colonel Shinn. "They are just as healthy and well fed as they can be. But lately they have been exploding."

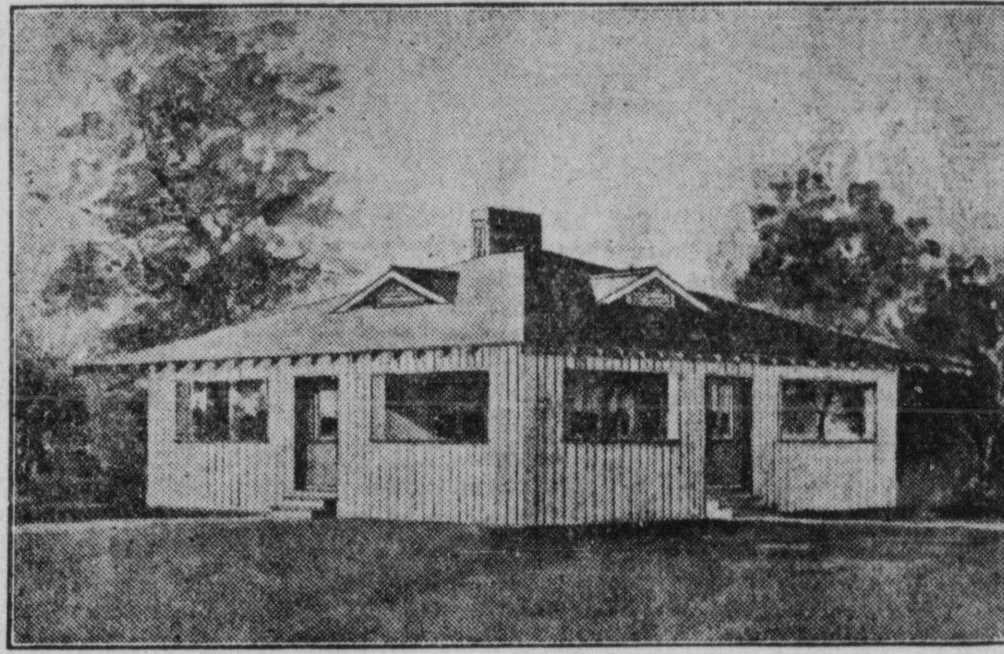

"They will swim around in the most sportive manner in their bowl and then suddenly they will come to the surface of the water, and—pop! bang!—explode into a thousand bits!"

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 124 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

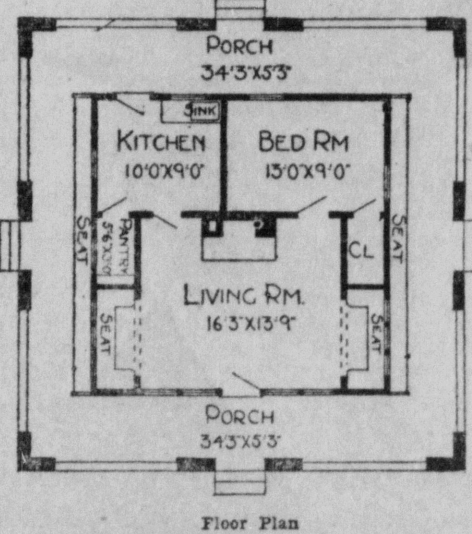

Can you imagine yourself "Far from the maddening throng," living in a bungalow like this with never a care or a thought except the comfortable exertion of breathing the pure air from the fields or the woods? To suggest this to the tired city dweller who is caged in a flat may seem cruel, yet even he or she hopes sometime to live amid such surroundings. A bungalow like this fills the day dreams of thousands of people who are able to keep up their ambition by the hope of some time being far away from the scenes of confusion and bustle that tax the nerves and the strength.

Now to come down out of the clouds to more practical things. The plan of this bungalow, you will observe, is simplicity itself. There is more porch than house. And while there are only three rooms, we shall see how roomy the structure can be made. The porch extends all around the house with steps on each of the four sides. This porch is five feet three inches wide. At a very small expense the open spaces between the pillars of the porch can be screened in and screen doors provided at the entrances. Divisions or partitions of tapestry can divide thus the entire porch into outdoor bedrooms. Privacy or protection against beating rains or sunshine can be provided by the placing of canvas shades on rollers at the openings.

This plan is an ideal conception intended for the man or woman who wants to live outdoors. In fact, it is a compromise between the outdoors and the indoors. The side of the porch, for instance, adjacent to the kitchen, can be utilized as an outdoor dining room, and if all the remaining porch space is not needed for bedrooms it can be set aside for other purposes. The building itself is 24 feet square, and the porches added make it 34 feet, three inches square. The living room, provided with window seats, as the plan shows, and a cheery fireplace for use in cold weather, or on rainy days, is 16 feet 3 inches long and 13 feet 9 inches wide. The kitchen is 10 feet long and nine feet wide. A closet is provided off the bedroom, and a pantry of ample size is placed off the kitchen. If the bedroom is not used on account of the porch being fitted up for sleeping quarters, this room can be used as a den or as a nursery.

The people of this period have come to realize the value and hygienic necessity of plenty of fresh air. This has come about through long education. The fresh air cure for consumption is even now established as a fact and camps are maintained in many parts of the country for the treatment of this disease by the fresh air method. It is needless to say that no member of a family living in a bungalow like this will ever need treatment for that dread disease. The open window at night is the greatest safeguard against disease. It is in the winter when the windows are closed, shutting out the pure air, that most ailments are contracted.

The bungalow displayed here can be built for a nominal sum. The interior of the house, for instance, where most of the money in building usually is spent, can be simplicity itself. The ceilings can be beamed and the sides of the walls finished with panels or with wainscoting and varnished or stained.

As for the exterior, the design is admirably adapted to being finished with cement stucco. On the sheathing tar paper should be nailed and over this furring strips nailed. Then either expanded metal or wooden lath can be used. Two coats will be required. The first, or scratch coat, is a mixture of lime mortar containing plenty of hair. Before this coat is dry it should be scratched to make a holding surface for the cement mortar that is to be the finish coat. This coat can be applied to bring out any desired finish. The most popular finish in cement stucco is called the slap dash finish. It is applied by being thrown on with a trowel. It makes a rough finish most attractive.

DISCLOSURES OF A WILL

Prominent London Barrister Found to Have Been Wedded to His Servant for Many Years.

One of the most unusual romances in many years was unfolded in London recently by the death of Arthur Joseph Munby, a prominent barrister of Fig Tree Court, 83 years old. His will disclosed the fact that for more than thirty-seven years he was wedded to Hannah Cullwick, a servant, and though the world did not know of the union, he was devoted to her and she had as her highest ambition to serve him and cook for him. He spent many months of each year with her in Shifnal, and her relatives knew of the wedding, but his relatives were ignorant of the marriage. So devoted was Munby that he wrote verse to her. She did not care for books and learning and she had no comprehension of the vast learning of her husband or his wealth. She did not want to be dependent upon him and was accustomed practically all her life to work out. Munby had ample means to support her luxuriously, but she did not want to live in London, hating the city. Munby's business required him to spend part of the year there, but the remainder of the time was devoted to his wife. She died a few months before him, at the age of 84, but Munby did not change his will in which he referred to her as a servant and said of her: "Hannah has always refused and still refuses to have the position which as my wife she might and could have had, and has always insisted, and still insists, on being my servant as well as my wife, her one grievance being that she cannot be my only servant, and whereas owing chiefly to this noble and unselfish resolve of hers I have never been able to make known of my said marriage to my family, or to the world at large, and the same is known only to her kindred and three of my most intimate college friends, of whom Robert Spencer Borland knows the full circumstances and knows her personally."—New York Press.

A Humble Invention.

To forget the inventions of the hour is an impossibility. They are before one at every turn, and many of them contain possibilities vast and much discussed. For that reason it is well occasionally to contemplate some invention of the past which works unremittently and inconspicuously for the welfare of mankind. Consider the air brake. How many, when they take a journey by rail, ever take thought of the device which stands ready to insure safety from possible accidents? All are so used to the sibilant noise below the cars that they never consider its portentousness. Yet by this application of the power of compressed air, tens of thousands of lives have been preserved, and railroad travel has been made more expeditious. All this is arduous toils; not a word of it but what has been said scores of times before. But we like to dwell upon the air brake as one of those typical inventions which are doing their work faithfully and humbly while recent creations get the glory and applause.—Collier's.

RECORD AS RAILROAD BUILDER

Don Juan Whittemore Retires at the Age of 81 After Most Remarkable Career.

Unquestionably one of the most remarkable careers in the history of American railroading that has furnished so many illustrious examples of brilliant or faithful work is that of Don Juan Whittemore, who recently retired as chief engineer of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad.

Mr. Whittemore is 81 years of age, he has been building railroads for a little over sixty-three years, and has held the office of chief engineer for the St. Paul system continuously for forty-seven years, or virtually throughout the entire existence of the company.

Mr. Whittemore not only enjoys the distinction of having built and located railroads all over the United States and a part of Canada and Cuba while most of the present big transportation systems of the country were still undreamed of, but he has himself supervised the construction and reconstruction during nearly half a century of one of the biggest of them all, from almost nothing to some 9,000 miles.

In fact, the crowning achievement of his life, undertaken at the age of 77, many years after the time of retirement for most men, was the supervision in many of the most essential features of the construction of a new railroad reaching half way across the continent. This is the Pacific coast extension of the St. Paul system, known since its completion during the last year as the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad, extending for 1,600 miles west of the Missouri river to Tacoma and Seattle.

SAVED BY LIGHTNING FLASH

Train With Two Hundred Passengers Kept From Destruction by Narrow Margin.

The engineer of a train that runs between Buffalo and Rochester had a thrilling experience on a recent trip. The train had a clear track, as was supposed, and was running at a high rate of speed. The night was as dark as pitch, and the rain beat unceasingly against the car windows. The headlight was of little use, and the engineer could see but a few yards in advance. Suddenly a flash of lightning, followed by a terrific peal of thunder, lit up the track a half-mile ahead, and the engineer saw something that sent the blood from his cheeks. A hundred yards ahead four freight cars were standing on the track. Grasping the reverse lever, he pulled it back to the last notch and shouted to the fireman to put on the air brakes. The great engine creaked and groaned, while the fireman and engineer stood looking in each other's faces, with the cold perspiration on their foreheads. Then the engine tottered and stopped with a shock so sudden that the passengers in the coaches were thrown from their seats, the chandeliers swung from the ceiling and two of them fell to the floor. After the excitement had subsided the engineer and conductor investigated the situation and found the pilot of the engine shoved a foot beneath the caboose of the freight train ahead. The flash of lightning was all that saved the lives of two hundred passengers.

RARE WOODS FOR ITS TIES

Panama Railroad Will Be Laid on Lignum Vitae and Other Most Costly Varieties.

The Panama Railroad will lay its tracks over the rarest and most valuable cabinet woods. The road is now being relocated incidental to the construction of the canal over part of the old line and it has become necessary to replace the old soft wood. Eight thousand hardwood ties have just been received at Colon from Colombia. Most of these ties are hewn from Gualeum, or lignum vitae, but there are also many of polivillo, corteza and balsamo.

These hard woods should last indefinitely even in the tropical climate of the Isthmus but they can be laid and nailed only by the use of special machinery which bores holes for the screw bolts and chisels out faces to form the rail seats.

Train Stopped by Caterpillars.

Black caterpillars so thoroughly "greased the track" for a short Southern Pacific train near here that the engine came to a dead stop three times. The engine was drawing only one coach up the heavy grade between here and Sisson. When about a mile north of McCloud the first hold-up was made by the caterpillars.

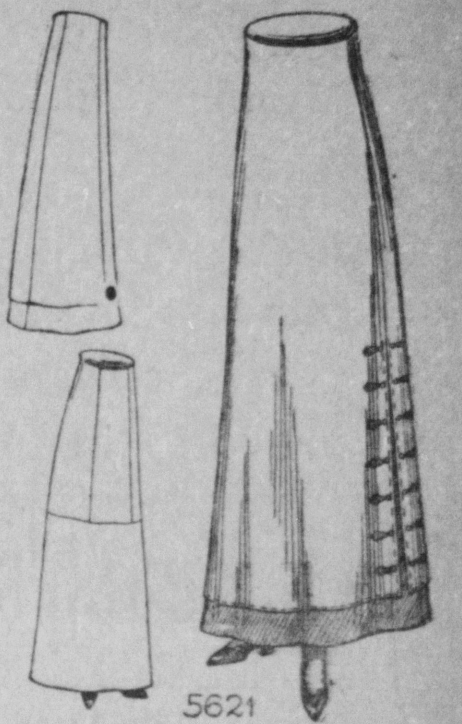

The engineer was forced to turn on the sand to make the wheels grip the track. Immediately upon the sand being shut off there was another stop. This was repeated again, so the man at the throttle kept the sand running until he had passed the caterpillar belt.—McCloud Correspondence, San Francisco Chronicle.

Living and Learning.

"Why, Tommy, Tommy," wailed a startled mother, soothing her young son's battle wounds, after a fight with a larger warrior, "you should have known enough not to fight that huge Smith boy." "Well, mother," philosophized the lad, gamely, "I don't know that I have made such a big mistake after all. Dad says we must live and learn, and I'm still alive and I've learned that I can't lick Jimmy Smith."

Practical Fashions

LADY'S TUNIC SKIRT.

One of the smartest novelties of the present season is found in the double skirt. The illustration shows a practical design in this style. There is a five gore foundation, which has a flounce reaching well above the knees. Over this is the tunic, which is seamed at each side and which comes nearly to the edge of the skirt. One material or two may be used in making a skirt of this character.

The pattern (5621) is cut in sizes 22 to 30 inches waist measure. Medium size requires 4 3/4 yards of 44 inch material.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

HOUSEHOLD SANITATION.

We hear much of the dust enemy and we should hear and heed the repeated warnings given us in regard to the evils of dust. The children in our schools today will know much better how to keep clean, sanitary houses than did our grandmothers, providing they follow the teaching. A grain of dust too small to be noticed by the unaided eye may be the abode of hundreds of microbes which can cause us trouble. The vacuum cleaner is doing good work to wipe out dust and keep us free from such exposure to disease, but where one may have the advantage of a cleaner hundreds of thousands are obliged to wield the broom and dustcloth.

When sweeping, it is best to have a damp broom and something like dampened paper or tea leaves to keep the dust from flying. One can by a little planning keep and dry the tea leaves, moistening them as needed.

In sweeping a carpet, a good plan is to sweep and take up the dust from each breadth or two, instead of spreading it all over the room.

It is much more sanitary, besides much easier, to have rugs and bare floors. The rugs can be taken outside and cleaned and the floors wiped, so that the room is free from dust.

The dust cloth is another useful article to consider; those patented affairs that have some kind of oil in the weave are good because they hold the dust and keep it from scattering back to the floor. When using an ordinary cloth, it may be dampened slightly with furniture polish and it will hold the dust much better.

Ventilation of the home is another important matter. Cold air is not necessarily pure, and our lungs need fresh, pure oxygen in order to make and keep pure, good blood. Those who sleep in unaired, unventilated bedrooms to save the fuel bill are piling up a good fat bank account for the family doctor as well as making future suffering for themselves. No body unfed by fresh air can withstand disease, and the little busy microbes get in good work on such a host.

The Message.

Religion has an economic message. It has a great social program. But first of all it comes with commanding authenticity as a word to moral strugglers under the stress and strain of the behests of consciousness.—Rev. L. H. Hough, Methodist, Brooklyn.
